At Wetherby Kensington we build boys' resilience to radicalisation by promoting fundamental British values and enabling our pupils to challenge extremist views. All staff have a statutory duty to have due regard to the need to prevent children from being drawn into terrorism. In interpreting what is meant by 'due regard', we take guidance from the government's Prevent Strategy, including the Channel programme, which aims to ensure that vulnerable children of any faith, ethnicity or background receive support before their vulnerabilities are exploited by those that would want them to embrace terrorism. There are many other areas of the curriculum and school life where fundamental values are promoted. As part of the EYFS curriculum it is a statutory requirement for the teachers to plan activities to promote each child's personal, social and emotional development. Boys are individually supported in developing confidence, autonomy and self-respect. They are

Our classrooms are safe spaces where boys can understand and discuss a wide range of sensitive topics, including extremism. In the process of promoting critical thinking, and in learning how to challenge terrorist ideologies, we recognise that staff may occasionally find themselves with a paradox. In an educational and developmental context, it is natural for children to want to explore and question different values and beliefs, some of which may, if only hypothetically or temporarily, challenge fundamental British values. Our staff exercise careful professional judgement in such cases, and above all, whether inside or outside the classroom, are particularly alert to risk - indicators of vulnerable children and, if appropriate, must seek further guidance. 3) Wetherby Kensington belongs to the Alpha Plus Group. Within this group there are information sharing protocols. Information is also shared with the LA Prevent Leads.
